

Never assume that stock markets are trying to tell you something.

Clive Crook

□ Seasoned, widely-respected journalist and commentator on economics and politics. □

One of the world's most respected economic and political journalists. Held a broad portfolio of editorial positions at The Economist over twenty years, including deputy editor for eleven years. Recent work on the future of the state (globalization and politics) and the good company (corporate social responsibility).

Columnist and member of the editorial board, Bloomberg View. Senior editor, The Atlantic Monthly.

Ahead of the Curve

Columnist and member of the editorial board at Bloomberg View. Senior editor at The Atlantic Monthly.

Highlights

Clive Crook is one of the world's most respected journalists. As a commentator, his principal interest is political economy—the intersection of politics and economics.

For some twenty years, Mr. Crook guided The Economist magazine's editorial line across its broadly defined economics terrain. As its Deputy Editor for eleven years, he supervised its full range of interests in business, politics and international relations.

He is the author of hundreds of articles, almost all of them unsigned (in the The Economist's tradition of anonymity), including many of the magazine's most memorable and influential editorials.

As The Economist's chief economics commentator, he wrote frequently on global trade, development and the economic role of government.

In 2004, Mr. Crook co-chaired the Copenhagen Consensus project, a gathering of Nobel laureates and other world renowned economists aimed at framing global development priorities for the coming decades.

A former chief Washington commentator of the Financial Times, Clive is a columnist and a member of the editorial board at Bloomberg View. He is also Contributing editor at the National Journal.

Clive Crook is much in demand in the United States and in Europe as a speaker on politics and economics, addressing a variety of business audiences on a wide range of subjects and speaking to broader audiences, as well.

Topics

Corporate social responsibility

The future of Europe

Globalization—particularly the political dimension, international economy, India & China

American competitiveness; America's place in the world

Globalisation of services—how far can it go?

Credentials

- Columnist and member of the editorial board, Bloomberg View
- Senior editor, The Atlantic Monthly
- Contributing editor, National Journal
- Former Washington commentator, Financial Times
- At The Economist
 - Deputy Editor
 - Economics Editor
 - Washington DC Correspondent
 - Economics Correspondent
- Former assistant to the British government's Chief Economic Advisor
- Speechwriter, Her Majesty's Treasury ministers
- Former consultant to the World Bank and chief editor of its annual World Development Reports
- Co-chair, Copenhagen Consensus project

Leigh
BureauSM
W.ColstonLeigh, Inc.