On Paradise Drive: How We Live Now (And Always Have) in the Future Tense

What is life really like in today's middle- and upper-middle-class suburbs? What is it about being American that drives us so hard to relentlessly move and labor and change? And are we as shallow as we look? In On Paradise Drive, David probes to see if down beneath the surface activities of everyday life there is a grand, complicated and deeply American idealism that inspires not only the shallow strivings but noble ones, as well. Few commentators have David's flair for painting the American social landscape with such color and comic insight.

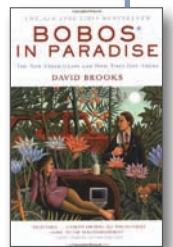

David Brooks holds several prestigious positions as a commentator:

Bi-weekly Op-Ed columnist for The New York Times

Regular analyst on NewsHour with Jim Lehrer and NPR's All Things Considered

Bobos in Paradise: The New Upper Class and How They Got There

In his bestselling work of "comic sociology", David Brooks coins a new word, Bobo, to describe today's upper class—those who have wed the bourgeois world of capitalist enterprise to the hippie values of the bohemian counterculture. Their hybrid lifestyle is the context for the success of stores like Restoration Hardware and Starbucks. In this witty and serious look at the cultural consequences of the information age, David Brooks has defined a new generation.
